So when Mamma needs more they rush off in high glee,
And shout to the druggist: "Please give it to me!"

Inability to get up brisk and fresh in the morning, lack of appetite, pallor, muddy complexion and poor spirits—these all indicate a disordered stomach and bad digestion—in adults and children, too. They also indicate the urgent need of taking Green's August Flower regularly for a few days.

It's a reliable old remedy for all stomach troubles, never fails to cure indigestion, dyspepsia and chronic constipation, and is a natural tonic for body and mind. Two sizes, 25c and 75c. All druggists.

America Has Half of World's Millionaires.

[Kansas City Times.]

There are now 10,087, known millionaires (more than one-half of whom—5,687—are in America), their fortunes totaling nine billion dollars. Every State and Territory is represented in the list and one millionaire, an Indian, Melvin Dempsey, is in Alaska. Nearly all of the remaining 5,060 millionaires are in Europe, though Asia has 900 and Africa and South America each have their share.

In 1846 Moses Y. Beach printed a list of New York City's rich men. He gave the names of 1,024 possessing $100,000 each, and twenty-three men with one million dollars each. Now millionaires are counted among the rich, and there 1,300 of them in New York City alone.

In Australia Sir Jervoise Clarke has a sheep ranch worth 150 million dollars, and in South Africa "Abe" Benley is so rich that he gave eighty million acres of valuable land as a contribution to the Salvation army.

Among the millionaires of London Sir Thomas Lipton's twenty-five million dollars is "small fry" when compared with such estates as that of the infant Earl of Grosvenor, valued conservatively at eighty million dollars, or that of the premier Duke of Norfolk, whose income is $7,500 a day.

We are drawing no morals in this article, yet one if forced at least to think, and think profoundly, when he learns that there are many very wealthy men, including forty-nine millionaires, in Russia, and not one in Japan save the Mikado himself. The entire nation, according to Tiji Shimpō, Tokio's leading financial journal, holds but 441 fortunes of as much as one-quarter million dollars each, and these are Japan's richest. Our Senator Clarke or Mr. Flagler could either of them buy out the 441. And yet Japan has no paupers. It is a land of people well drilled, of farms well tilled, of pockets well filled. Their wealth is evenly distributed. On the other hand, Russia's rich are lavishly elegant in their manner of living beyond anything mere money has made possible in other lands. Not a duke or a prince of the blood but indulges in magnificent extravagances which makes the Occidental gasp with amazement.

The Czar has always been called the richest man in the world and his fortune is set at $1,200,000,000, but Muzaffar, the Shah of Persia, wears a green stone in his turban worth four million dollars and whatever Persia herself is worth is his.

Considering the growth in individual wealth since the days of Moses Beach, we are justified in fearing a development of money power during the next fifty years that will be full of peril. The safety of a nation is in the diffusion of its wealth.

Well Off, But Sleeps Almost Anywhere.

[New Haven, Conn., Telegram to the Philadelphia Record.]

His clothing worn and in rags, his body bent with the weight of his eight years of hard labor on a farm, Patrick Corcoran, who carried a small fortune in his clothes, appeared in the Probate Court to oppose the appointment of a conservator asked for by relatives to care for his property.

Corcoran, working as a hired man ever since his youth, saved $14,775, which is deposited in local banks. He carries the bankbooks in his pockets and has been sleeping in barns and out-of-the-way places, exposing himself in such a way that the wealth is likely to be stolen from him. The court appointed a local lawyer as conservator.
